Juan-María Vianney, cura de Ars Cerf

John Marie Vianney, who was to be the honor of the secular clergy of France, was born in the very heart of the diocese of Lyons. This diocese was destined to provide France with more apostles and more charitables works during the nineteenth century than any other. John belonged tot he agricultural class, from which our best priests have always been recruited. An example of his sage advice can be seen. He told a man not to go to La Trappe, a Trappist monastery. The man objected: "But, Father, I am quite certain; my best inspirations lead me thither; I thirst for mortifications and austerities." The Cure replied: "My child, do not go there." The young man went home, prayed and reflected once more, and persuading himself that he saw more clearly than the holy Cure, went to Aiguebelle. He was accepted and began his novitiate. He found the Rule easy to follow and was a model of regularity. However, shortly before his profession he suddenly abandoned the monk's habit and has never been heard of since.

The Spirit of the Cure of Ars Scepter Publishers

Jean-Baptiste Marie Vianney (known in English as John Vianney), was a French priest that lived from 1786-1859, afterwards to become famous as the Curé of Ars. He was a man that overcame his meager education and was ordained priest. His work as a confessor is John Vianney's most remarkable accomplishment; because of the remarkable spiritual conversion of the people of his community and its surroundings, he spent 11 to 12 hours daily reconciling people. Besides reconciling sinners with God the indefatigable cure was frequently engaged in the important work of directing souls to the knowledge and attainment of their vocation and in giving other counsel valuable in their spiritual life. This book "The Spirit of the Curé of Ars" gathers some of his catechisms, homilies, exhortations and his thoughts when directing the souls of people; in this work the Spirit of God which was in him gave an incomparable fitness and simplicity to all his words, which were animated by the extreme tenderness of his heart. In his homilies he was accustomed to recall the scenes of his early life as a farmer boy, and he employed the analogies and arguments drawn from external nature and according to his own statements, it was evident that there was nothing in the visible world that had not reminded him of God and of eternity. Besides these expressive comparisons, Father Vianney's sermons frequently described incidents drawn from his personal experience. His intellectual and moral perfection of the human faculties, refined by grace, was very striking in M. Vianney. He had no variety or extent of human sciences. But he had what supplies the place of knowledge, and even of experience -the faith which knows and foresees all things. He had great practical wisdom, a profound knowledge of the ways of God and of the miseries of man, an admirable sagacity, a prompt and accurate judgment, an acute, judicious, and penetrating mind. He was endowed, besides, with a supernatural memory, an exquisite tact, and a power of observation which would have made him formidable to those who approached him, if his great and indulgent charity had not softened all his judgments. Jean-Baptiste Marie Vianney was placed by Providence in an unknown corner of a little town and made him shone under a bushel rather than on a candlestick, he shone before the world with incomparable brilliancy; he was a triple representation of our Lord, setting before men the light of truth, with an example of captivating goodness, and edifying virtue.

Sermons of St. John Vianney St. Jean-Marie Vianney was born in 1786 at Dardilly, France. After being drafted, leaving the army, and opening a school for village schoolchildren, he joined the minor seminary of Verrieres in 1812 and was ordained a priest three years afterward. While famously serving as cure of the town of Ars, he saw to it that his parishioners understood their evil pastimes, spending long hours in the confessional at a time. St. Vianney died at Ars-sur-Formans, France, in 1859, and was declared a saint by Pope Pius XI in 1925. His feast day is celebrated on August 4.

Jean-Baptiste Marie Vianney (known in English as John Vianney), was a French priest that lived from 1786-1859, afterwards to become famous as the Curé of Ars. He was a man that overcame his meager education and was ordained a priest. Besides being a tireless confessor he was frequently engaged in the important work of directing souls to the knowledge and attainment of their vocation and in giving other counsel valuable in their spiritual life. The special features of this most supernatural life appear to be, evangelical poverty of spirit, and the two fruits which spring from it, the sweetness and the radiant peace which beamed from his countenance, his words, his tones, and every action of his life. In a word, the one great truth taught us by the whole story of the Curé of Ars is the all-sufficiency of supernatural sanctity. A soul inhabited by the Holy Spirit becomes His instrument and His organ in the salvation of men. To such a sanctity the smallness of natural gifts is no hindrance, and the greatest intellectual power without it does little in the order of grace, for souls are to be won to God as God created and redeemed them by love and by compassion; and it was this which shone forth with a surpassing splendor in all the life of this great servant of Jesus, and concealed even the wonderful gifts of discernment and supernatural power with which he was endowed. The book "The life of John Vianney, his thoughts and excerpts from his sermons" talks in depth this saint's extraordinary life, thoughts and some of his sermons, through which he hoped to bring men closer to God and Salvation.

Saint Jean-Marie Vianney, Curé of Ars Istituto Storico San Josemaría Escrivá

Saint Jean-Baptiste Marie Vianney, known affectionately as The Curé d'Ars, was a peasant priest. In the aftermath of the French Revolution and Napoleonic rule, in a time of anti-clericalism and social and economic disarray, he was appointed parish priest of the obscure and dispirited village of Ars. Over the next forty years, he was the agent of a complete spiritual, social, and material reform of his parish, which became a joyful refuge and a place of pilgrimage. Men and women would travel for weeks simply to confess before the humble and holy man. His particular devotion to the Blessed Sacrament is manifest in this book of twenty-seven meditations, which had its first English edition two years before his canonization in 1925. St. John is now celebrated as the patron of parish priests.

This Is A New Release Of The Original 1869 Edition.

Studia et Documenta, vol. 8\(2014\)

St. John Vianney, the Cure d'Ars, though he was not thought competent to preach or hear confessions, became one of the greatest preachers and confessors of his age. The 19th century was one of optimism for French Catholicism, but, following the horrors of the French Revolution, there was also a feeling of lukewarmness and an approach to the moral life that felt sin could not be all that bad. St. John Vianney, on the other hand, would not suffer to see souls be damned for lukewarmness. His preaching permeates with the love of God first and foremost, and clear prescriptions for leading his flock to heaven. Reprinted exactly from the 1901 Wagner edition and unabridged, the Sermons of the Cure d'Ars are arranged for every Sunday of the year according to the 1962 Calendar, as well as the principal feasts of the year.
