Connecting the Dots... Lonely Planet Book contains 600 more Simple daily use kolam designs. The Rangoli - Kolam Book - Volume 2: featuring 600 more Designs is a comprehensive collection that celebrates the intricate and culturally significant art of Kolam. Kolam is a traditional form of decoration practiced in South India, where intricate patterns are created on the ground using rice flour, chalk, or colored powders. These designs are an integral part of daily rituals, auspicious occasions, and celebrations. This book showcases a wide array of 600 Kolam designs, each with its own distinct blend of lines, curves, and shapes. The designs are often inspired by nature's beauty, geometric precision, and cultural symbolism. They reflect the deep-rooted traditions and artistic heritage of South India, showcasing the creativity and devotion of its people. Whether you're passionate about traditional art forms, seeking inspiration for creative expression, or interested in immersing yourself in the beauty of Indian culture, the Kolam Book - Volume 2 - is a valuable resource. It not only provides insights into the world of Kolam but also encourages readers to embrace this captivating art form and create their own meaningful designs. Volume 1 and Volume 2 of this series will cover 600 more unique designs in each. Some of the designs in these books are repetition from "Apartment Kolam's: KOLAM: The timeless art of South India". It holds additional kolams on top of the designs shared in the primary book.

When the Mahabharata and Ramayana are performed in South and Southeast Asia, audiences may witness a variety of styles. A single performer may deliver a two-hour recitation, women may meet in informal singing groups, shadow puppets may host an all-night play, or professional theaters may put on productions lasting thirty nights. Performances often celebrate ritual passages: births, deaths, marriages, and religious observances. The stories live and are transmitted through performance; their characters are well known and well loved. Yet written versions of the Mahabharata and Ramayana have existed in both South and Southeast Asia for hundreds of years. Rarely have these texts been intended for private reading. What is the relationship between written text and oral performance? What do performers and audiences mean when they identify something as "Ramayana" or "Mahabharata"? How do they conceive of texts? What are the boundaries of the texts? By analyzing specific performance traditions, Boundaries of the Text addresses questions of what happens to written texts when they are preformed and how performance traditions are affected when they interact with written texts. The dynamics of this interaction are of particular interest in South and Southeast Asia where oral performance and written traditions share a long, interwoven history. The contributors to Boundaries of the Text show the difficulty of maintaining sharp distinctions between oral and written patterns, as the traditions they consider defy a unidirectional movement from oral to written. The boundaries of epic traditions are in a state of flux, contracting or expanding as South and Southeast Asian societies respond to increasing access to modern education, print technology, and electronic media.

Eco-Mathematics Education strives to show how everyone can experience the embedded connection between mathematics and the natural world. The authors' sincere hope is that by doing so, we can radically change the way we come to understand mathematics, as well as humanity's place in the ecosystem. The book hopes to accomplish this by providing in-depth lesson plans and resources for educators and anyone interested in teaching and learning mathematics through an ecological aesthetic perspective. All lessons are based on the inquiry method of teaching, aligned to standards, incorporate art projects inspired by famous artists, and utilize recycled and/or natural materials as much as possible.

Kolam is a line drawing with geometrical shapes and is practised everywhere in South India. Part - I of this book lists traditional 'nine Kolams' which can be drawn in our house during the nine days of Navarathri. These Kolam are usually decorated with color powders. Part - II of this book is a Kolam Hand Book which illustrates simple and easy design Kolams.

Kolam Tradition in South India

Springer Nature

This book covers kolams of varying complexity and for daily use and festive occasions. These kolams are so authentic and bring back old memories of growing up in south India where every street is adorned with kolams. Kōlam drawing is an integral part of South Indian tradition.

Drawn freehand at the entrance to a home, kolam patterns represent the interconnected existence of the universe and its life forms, exemplifying geometrical symmetry, beauty and precision. The cultural and ritual significance of kolam is depicted in ancient Vedic literature as the interaction between space, time and energy denoting the symbolic mapping of the cosmos. By connecting the dots, the artist creates a complex network of intertwined designs that represents the rhythm of life, movement, health and happiness. The designs are hand-drawn by women to honor, welcome and invite guests to their home and express gratitude to the divine. In this book, the author's mother illustrates the step-by-step process of connecting the dots to create simple to intricate kolams. It can be used by any art enthusiast to explore techniques for recreational drawing, team building activities, art projects, meditation and focus, or to simply study and practice South India's rich culture and tradition.

Martin Gardner's Mathematical Games columns in Scientific American inspired and entertained several generations of mathematicians and scientists. Gardner in his crystal-clear prose illuminated corners of mathematics, especially recreational mathematics, that most people had no idea existed. His playful spirit and inquisitive nature invite the reader into an exploration of beautiful mathematical ideas along with him. These columns were both a revelation and a gift when he wrote them; no one--before Gardner--had written about mathematics like this. They continue to be a marvel. This volume, first published in 1979, contains columns published in the magazine from 1968-1971. This 1992 MAA edition contains a foreword by Donald Knuth and a postscript and extended bibliography added by Gardner for this edition.

Feeding a Thousand Souls
Archaeopress Publishing Ltd
This multidisciplinary collection presents 11 essays ranging from the pre-Vedic to the modern era and incorporating research on Hindu, Buddhist and tribal cultures. Authors ask whether the worship of goddesses, strongly linked to fertility rituals, might have mitigated the ecological decline of South Asia in the pre-British and post-colonial eras.

This book constitutes the refereed proceedings of the 20th International Workshop on Combinatorial Image Analysis, IW CIA 2020, held in Novi Sad, Serbia, in July 2020. The 20 full papers presented were carefully reviewed and selected from 23 submissions. The papers are grouped into two sections. The first one includes twelve papers devoted to theoretical foundations of combinatorial image analysis, including digital geometry and topology, array grammars, picture languages, digital tomography, and other technical tools for image analysis. The second part includes eight papers presenting application-driven research on topics such as image repairing, annotation of images, image reconstruction, forgery detection, and dealing with noise in images.

Rangoli - Kolam Book Abbeville Press
Every day millions of Tamil women in southeast India wake up before dawn to create a kolam, an ephemeral ritual design made with rice flour, on the thresholds of homes, businesses and temples. This thousand-year-old ritual welcomes and honors Lakshmi, the goddess of wealth and alertness, and Bhudevi, the goddess of the earth. Created by hand with great skill, artistry, and mathematical precision, the kolam disappears in a few hours, borne away by passing footsteps and hungry insects. This is the first comprehensive study of the kolam in the English language. It examines its significance in historical, mathematical, ecological, anthropological, and literary contexts. The culmination of Vijaya Nagarajan's many years of research and writing on this exacting ritual practice, Feeding a Thousand Souls celebrates the experiences, thoughts, and voices of the Tamil women who keep this tradition alive.

Practicing Art and Anthropology presents an in-depth exploration of transdisciplinary work in the expanding space between art and anthropology. Having trained and worked as an artist as well as an anthropologist, Anna Laine's decades-long engagement in art practice, artistic research and anthropology provide her with a unique perspective on connections between the two fields, both in theory and in practice. Intertwining artistic and anthropological ways of working, Laine asks what it means to engage a transdisciplinary stance when academia requires a specific disciplinary belonging. In order to expand the methods of producing academic knowledge by going beyond conventional approaches to research, she draws on examples from her own work with Tamils in India and the UK to present an original take on how we can cross the boundaries between art and anthropology to reach multiple dimensions of understanding. Offering exceptional breadth and detail, Practicing Art and Anthropology provides a unique approach to the discussion. An important read for students and scholars in art and anthropology as well as artists and anyone interacting in the space in-between.

This compelling volume explores how war magic and warrior religion unleash the power of the gods, demons, ghosts, and the dead. Documenting war magic and warrior religion as they are performed in diverse cultures and across historical time periods, this volume foregrounds embodiment, practice, and performance in anthropological approaches to magic, sorcery, shamanism, and religion. The authors go beyond what magic 'represents' to consider what magic does. From Chinese exorcists, Javanese spirit siblings, and black magic in Sumatra to Tamil Tiger suicide bombers, Chamorro spiritual re-enchantment, tantric Buddhist war magic, and Yanomami dark shamans, religion and magic are re-evaluated not just from the practitioner's perspective but through the victim's lived experience. These original investigations reveal a nuanced approach to understanding social action, innovation, and the revitalization of tradition in colonial and post-colonial societies undergoing rapid social transformation.

Teaching outside the classroom improves pupils' engagement with learning as well as their health and wellbeing, but how can teachers link curriculum objectives effectively with enjoyable and motivating outdoor learning in Year 5? The National Curriculum Outdoors: Year 5 presents a series of photocopiable lesson plans that address each primary curriculum subject, whilst enriching pupils with the benefits of learning in the natural environment. Outdoor learning experts Sue Waite, Michelle Roberts and Deborah Lambert provide inspiration for primary teachers to use outdoor contexts as part of their everyday teaching and showcase how headteachers can embed curriculum teaching outside throughout the school, whilst protecting teaching time and maintaining high-quality teaching and performance standards. All of the Year 5 curriculum lessons have been tried and tested successfully in schools and can be adapted and developed for school grounds and local natural environments. What's more, each scheme of work in this all-encompassing handbook includes primary curriculum objectives; intended learning outcomes; warm-up and main activities;

plenary guidance; natural connections; ICT and PSHE links; and word banks.
