"Family Emergent/Urgent and Ambulatory Care: The Pocket NP is the result of three decades of our experiences as emergency nurse practitioners (ENPs). We often found our pockets filled with scribbled notes that included tidbits of things- "Don't Miss!" items and important "Tips" and essential information to include in the history and physical documentation. Although we had many excellent medical reference textbooks, we identified the need for a quick reference guide that had an easy-to-use framework for the most commonly encountered problems seen in the emergency, medical screening, fast-track, and/or primary care setting"--

Springer Publishing Company

Emergency nursing is a unique specialty that requires a competent and experienced nurse who is able to work with the variety of patients seeking medical attention. Orientation programs tailored to the educational needs of new emergency department (ED) nurses are important for supporting the successful transition into emergency nursing. When a hospital hires a nurse, they are making an investment for excellent care. Nurses who complete an orientation program are more competent and less likely to leave their jobs. The purpose of this applied project was to develop a proposed curriculum for an ED program tailored for nurses transitioning from medical-surgical or other specialties to the ED. A literature review on successful orientation programs and ED orientation program content was completed. Common themes were found in the literature that were incorporated into the curriculum outline. A proposed curriculum outline was created based on evidence-based research and guidelines set forth by the Emergency Nurses Association (ENA), the professional nursing association dedicated to emergency nursing. The curriculum was reviewed and evaluated by an expert panel in the field of emergency nursing. Revisions were made based on experts' recommendations.
